The 4th industrial ventilation & hygiene conference

Industrial ventilation is a method for controlling human exposure to airborne toxic chemicals or flammable vapors by exhausting contaminated air from the work area and replacing it with clean fresh air. It is one technique to control exposure to air contaminants in the workplace.

Other techniques include process modifications, work practice modifications, substitution with less toxic chemicals, or elimination of the use of toxic chemicals. Industrial ventilation is normally used to remove welding fumes, solvent vapors, oil mists or dusts from a work location & exhaust these contaminants outdoors, filter the pollutants and exhaust to atmosphere. The design and trouble shooting of industrial ventilation systems should be handled by a qualified ventilation engineer or firms specializing in this field. On this basis, National Industrial Ventilation & Hygiene Conference has started on 2010 with the idea of increasing industrial ventilation knowledge in Iran. Other points included improvement of employee occupational health, experience sharing among experts and introducing scientific research achievements to industries.

Three previous conferences were of great successes, each hosting about 300 delegates. In the previous conferences, during the two day technical program, ventilation experts from across Iran provided instruction and lectures on the design, construction, operation, maintenance, and testing of ventilation systems. The Conference offered workshops, invited keynote speakers, research paper presentations and roundtable discussions. Delegates were also pleased with the numerous networking opportunities and trade exhibition. Overall feedback from attendees was positive and the result of the conferences was pleasing.

This conference in partnership with both Namanegar Co. & Sharif university of technology will be held 18 - 19 October 2014 at the Tehran permanent fairground following the three previous conferences .More information can be found in the conference website, <http://ivhc.sharif.ir>.
